

I am so tired of the powerful lobby groups that try to make life for the consumer more difficult in order to protect their turf. Hollywood is trying to make HDTV obsolete with anti-copy protection that will degrade the signal, and now someone wants to stop satellite radio from offering traffic and weather service? Do what is best for the consumer/ voters. Trying to stop technology is like trying to stop water from running downhill. It's going to get there eventually, so save your time and resources from trying to stop it.
